Datums.com
Derivatives Ai Translations of Uploaded Multimedia Sources

I determined the purpose and function of Datums.com based on the explicit text provided in the header of the first source.

The identification was made through the following specific details found in the sources:

- Explicit Labeling: The very first passage contains a graphic header that displays the website name "Datums.com" followed immediately by the descriptive sub-headline: "Derivatives Ai Translations of Uploaded Multimedia Sources".
- Contextual Evidence: The rest of the source material consists of a transcript of a video or podcast from January 14, 2026. The presence of the Datums.com header at the top of this transcript indicates that the text itself is a "derivative AI translation" produced by that platform from an original multimedia file.
- Source Attribution: The transcript identifies the original creator of the multimedia content as John AG from Currency Archive (also referred to as "Asian Guy"). By comparing the header with the content that follows, I concluded that Datums.com is the service used to convert John AG’s multimedia broadcast into the written format provided in the sources.
